And yes, we do have active support for it. But I was looking for something as simple as this to be able to update X-Plane in real time. We will very likely add a new airport to the next version of X-Plane if you file bug reports, or ask for such features. Now go play and have fun! (I would just like to note that I have not had any issues with the X-Plane 11 and the add-on and it's updates and updates). Using FizzBuzz to identify New Hire Quality - koryko1 ===== koryko1 Would love to know other people's thoughts on what worked or didn't. ~~~ ig1 I think the problem with it is it's not novel, people have been giving candidates fizzbuzz for years. It does show how a high level of competence might be more valuable than technical chops but that's not really a new idea. (well I do think that the problem with fizzbuzz is that you're telling people how to solve a non-problem, so in that sense it's a poor predictor of intelligence. If it was telling people how to solve an actual engineering problem it might be useful) Highlights of ODISI "OTC Metal" safety alert (2011) Background Innovative companies have been selling "useful metal scrap" for decades. For many years, the scrap metal has been collected and reduced for sale, with the metal on the metal's scrap value. However, these scrap metal dealers have also been purchasing and selling stolen metal, or metal that has been looted from train wrecks, ships, and airplanes. During the years, the steel industries have recycled more than 80% of their scrap metals in a way that is environmentally responsible. In the past, the metal dealers were at the bottom of the steel industry's recycling chain, and recycled steel. f678ea9f9e
